Beyond Fencelines

Interrogating the boundary between public and corporate sector responsibilities

Dr Thérèse Rudebeck
Traditional governance:
- Single governmental stakeholder controls decision making
- Limited participation of nonstate actors

Multilevel governance:
- Distribution of decision making between state actors
- Limited participation of nonstate actors

Consultative governance:
- Single stakeholder (usually government) controls decision making
- Extensive participation of nonstate actors

Delegated governance:
- Significant delegation of decision making to multiple stakeholders
- Extensive participation of nonstate actors
Where do you draw the line?